AAUP Data for 2010-11

Abbreviations: P, professor; AO, associate professor; AI, assistant professor; IN, instructor; AR, all ranks

AAUP faculty salary data is published annually in the March-April issue of Academe, the AAUP's magazine.

<http://www.aaup.org/AAUP/pubsres/academe/>

The data in this report was taken from the March-April, 2011, Academe issue.

Pitt's AAUP data includes medical school basic science faculty; Pitt's IPEDS data does not. Thus, Pitt's AAUP faculty salaries are much ($1000s) higher than IPEDS.

For faculty salaries among the public AAU universities for 2010-11, the AAUP Data Base shows that Pitt ranks:

15 out of 35 for full professor (P) salaries.

13 out of 35 for associate professor (AO) salaries.

28 out of 35 for assistant professor (AI) salaries.

17 out of 21 for instructor (IN) salaries (14 public AAU peers do not have any instructors by AAUP criteria).

25 out of 35 for all ranks (AR) salaries.

The AAUP database does not show the number of lecturers or no rank faculty, nor their average salaries.

The All Ranks (AR) faculty salary category reflects the disparity between the number of higher paid faculty versus the number of lower paid faculty at a university.

The lower the AR salary, the greater the disparity. Pitt has one of the lower AR (All Ranks) average salary (#25 out of 35 for 2010-11) of the public AAU universities.

The ratio AR/P (the All Ranks average salary divided by the full professor salary) reflects the disparity between the salaries of full professors and lower paid faculty.

The lower the AR/P ratio, the greater the disparity. Pitt has one of the lowest AR/P ratios (#34 out of 35 for 2010-11) of the public AAU universities.

The %P (% full professors) is the percentage of the faculty who have been promoted to full professor by an institution.

The lower the %P, the lower the total cost of faculty salaries at a university. Pitt has one of the lowest %P (#32 of 35 for 2010-11) of the public AAU universities.

Average faculty salaries for Pitt's Regional Campuses versus averages for Pitt's 34 public AAU peer group, Pitt (Pittsburgh), Penn State (University Park) and Temple.
